HEY THERE

HALLO FREUNDES

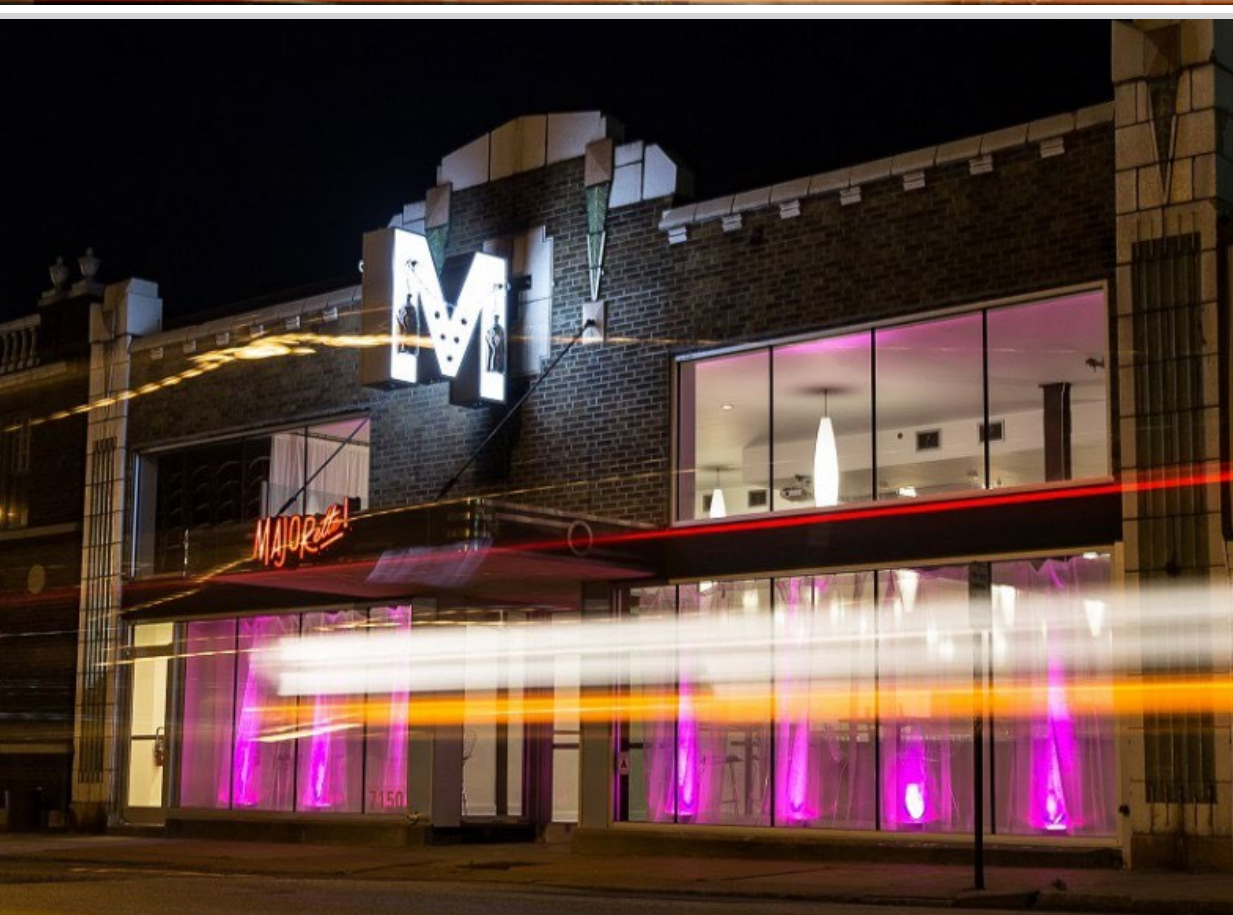

Seek no more

The theory of gravity. The moons of Jupiter. Ten dollars in your coat pocket. All great discoveries, no doubt. But they pale in comparison to the gems you've discovered in the form of the Boo Cat Club, Majorette, and Das Bevo. The Schuchards, owners of these fine venues, welcome you Artists hobnobbed with Tennessee Williams here. The Busch family fortified themselves with historical hometown brews here. We hope that you'll add your name to the famous roster of folks and characters who've walked these halls.

Vibes

Our venues share historical heritage, a love of creativity, and that spark that makes events memorable. But they’ve got their quirks.

BOO CAT CLUB

Boo Cat Club is a revived and alive cultural venue with a modern sensibility and classic charm. Established in 1908, its elegant design comes from architect Louis C. Spiering, who cut his teeth working on the St. Louis World’s Fair. The St. Louis Artists’ Guild, which included Tennessee Williams and the who’s who of St. Louis art for over a century. With a flexible layout that invites wandering and carousing, Boo Cat draws you back to a refined past.

MAJORETTE

Majorette is an event space where anything is possible. From its station on Manchester Avenue in Maplewood, the venue has played host to some of the greatest parties our city has seen. Modern, inviting, open, and quirky, it’s the perfect place for curious and creative people to let loose, whether they’re mingling in the exuberant courtyard or the game room.

DAS BEVO

If you’ve driven down Gravois, you’ve seen this windmill-capped landmark—one of the most loved places in St. Louis. They even named the neighborhood after it! Famously a stopover for the Busch family on the journey out to Grant’s Farm, it’s everything you’d expect of a bierhall and biergarten—and even boasts a Prohibition Era speakeasy. It’s a St. Louis icon perfect for celebrations that will go down in history. Mr. Busch called it, “A country club in the city.”

BOO CAT CLUB

Dear Sir or Madam,

On behalf of Tennessee Williams, Louis C. Spiering, Carol and Patrick Schuchard, and all of the other men and women whose efforts have cultivated the Boo Cat Club as a luminous center of the very finest that St. Louis has to offer, let me say: welcome.

It is our hope that among these catacombs and vaulted ceilings, ballroom, and theater, you discover pure pleasure of the respite from the outside world. In a place where joy, knowledge, and good tidings are exchanged freely.

Explore, cavort, and most of all, enjoy yourself.

Sincerely,
The Guests of Evenings Past

“We barely caught our breath and they are handing us champagne! Best. Wedding. Ever.”

MARIA 5:55 PM

Tell me about it, there is even a flower cart at the front door!

JENNIFER 6:43 PM

Hey, what’s the place you mentioned for Insta photos, again?

MARIA 6:56 PM

The courtyard garden is pretty perfect. That’s where Kate did the shoot before the wedding.

JENNIFER 7:10 PM

OMG this place is beautifulllllll

MARIA 7:15 PM

“Right?!”

JENNIFER 8:22 PM

“Hey, come down to the game room!
Josh and I want a rematch.

DAS BEVO

Found during the recent renovation of Das Bevo, this historical (and definitely not made-up) letter from Augustus “Gussie” Busch II and his cousin, Hermann Busch, offers an intriguing look into our city’s past.

September 1917

My dearest cousin Hermann,

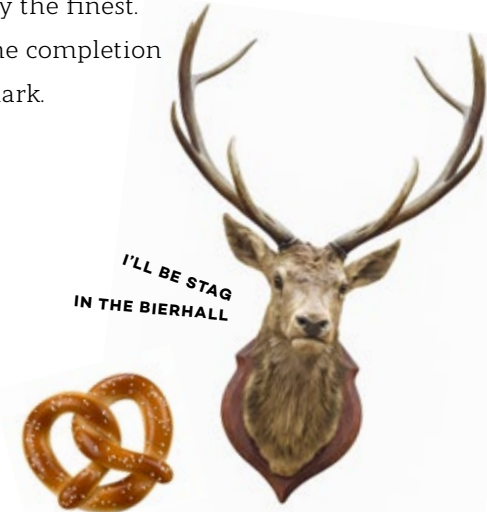

I am happy to report that construction on father’s venture is complete. The Mill—or Das Bevo, as we’ve taken to calling it—begins operation in a fortnite. As I’ve told you countless times, we hope it will serve as a stopover for all St. Louisans.

I know within these walls generations of St. Louisans will come together to celebrate their most important moments in this architectural wonder that father has built. They will cheers and sing in the Bierhall, some may even wed in the Mill Room amongst the Austrian tile murals. I can just imagine years from now our family lovingly referring to this exclusive space as the, “Country Club in the city!”

Once again, I must import you to visit us here in the States. I just know you will find Das Bevo to be a fortress of only the finest. Come posthaste. We will dine together and toast the completion of what will surely become a world-famous landmark.

With great affection, I remain, Your cousin,
 Gussie Busch
