MEET CHEF DEVIN

I was raised on a farm in Nebraska and took my first job in a restaurant when I was 15. I started as a dishwasher and worked my way up to being an Executive Chef at multiple restaurants. I have no formal training – I didn't go to culinary school. I've never worked for a Michelin Star Chef. I do, however, have 20 years of experience in the kitchen, the last 10 being exclusively fine dining. I've lived and worked in the US Virgin Islands, Atlanta, San Diego, Denver, Omaha, and Lincoln, Nebraska. I was Sous Chef at Sand Hills Golf Club, a top 20 in the world course, in the Nebraska Sand Hills, for 5 years, and recently moved to Georgia to take the Executive Chef position at a 5-star restaurant on St. Simons Island.

So while I may not have a degree or a certificate, I have the experience that many others do not – working with a wide variety of cuisines, for many different types of Chefs, in restaurants across the country. My journey has taught me that experience, technique, and passion are most important to making clients happy, and that is what I'm bringing to your table.
